CONTESTED DIVORCE CASE SETTLED

Mrs. Marion H. Dunbar Wants a Bill from Nelson Dunbar of Jewett City—Occupied Most of the Day.

When the superior court came in here at ten o'clock Tuesday morning the contested divorce trial of Marion H. Dunbar against Nelson Dunbar of Jewett City was started. During the afternoon session there was a conference of attorneys and a settlement was reached whereby the opposition will be withdrawn and the matter submitted to the court later.

Mrs. Dunbar brought the suit on the grounds of intemperance and cruelty and asked for the custody of two minor daughters, a general denial being made by Mr. Dunbar. Mrs. Dunbar, as the first witness, testified that her maiden name was Marion H. Dunbar and she married Nelson Dunbar at Norwich Town December 5, 1901, he being a fireman at the Hopkinton & Allen factory then. They lived on East Main street and later moved to Hedge avenue and then to Main and Penobscot streets. During the winter later he worked for J. B. Shannon on the boats and river steamers.

She told of her husband coming home drunk at the East Main street house and calling her and the child vile names, and she thought her life was in danger. Later he tried to strike her and threatened her on different occasions. She told that during her husband's drunken fits the Shannon building. Her husband had failed to support her and she had gone to work on East Main street and later on Church's restaurant at $1 a day. She hired an Italian woman to look after her children. This was in May, 1907, while the case there was on. Mr. Dunbar got his meals there and often got mad when not waited upon promptly and broke dishes. She moved with her husband to Market street about four years ago. He had delirium tremens, and she said Mr. Shannon discharged him because of his habits.

On cross examination she said she began to work regularly for Mr. Church in May, 1908, and in a short time her husband broke up his home and his sister took one of the children. She got apartments from Mr. Church and later became his housekeeper, where she lived for several months. She moved to Jewett City in October, 1908, where he got a tenement and his wife went there to live with him. She received no support from him. He was home drunk and caused so much trouble that she had to leave him. She came to Norwich and later went to Mr. Church's. She left a note at home saying she could not be back that Block A, where the bride has made her home.

The groom has been employed at the Penobscot company's new weaving shed for the past nine months, coming here from Bedford, Canada. His bride has been in Taftville for about the same length of time, also coming from Canada.

Following their return Saturday evening, they will be given a reception in St. Louis' hall.

After a few days' visit in Stafford Springs, Misses Katherine and Mary Butler have returned to their home on Otisville avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Vergason of Providence have been guests of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Vergason, of Huntington avenue.

Miss Alice Buckley and her guest, Miss Gertrude Ross, returned to New York Monday after a week's visit at night. She said she had seen her once and asked her to go back. She admitted writing a letter to him, saying that it was as bad as being in jail to live in Jewett City. She could not live there and advised him to get a housekeeper. Besides board for herself and children, Mrs. Dunbar now gets $250 a week. She denied that Mr. Dunbar had found fault with her being in Mr. Church's rooms and moved to Jewett City to break it up. She said that she worked steady as a fireman in Jewett City, and said that he did not object to her getting a divorce, except that it would show how mean he had treated his wife.

Testimony of Father and Mother.

Mrs. Catherine B. Richmond, mother of Nelson Dunbar, testified that she had assisted in the support of her daughter and children. She told of the cruel acts and vile talk of Mr. Dunbar, the latter being so bad she did not care to repeat it. She saw Mr. Dunbar under the influence of liquor several times. Mr. Richmond testified that he had drunk with Mr. Dunbar in the Shannon building but never saw him drunk. He didn't call at their home very often and never heard him abuse his family. F. C. Lewis, who had assisted in the support of her daughter and children, testified that he could take as much as any man. He got his liquor at the club upstairs, he claimed. John D. Johnson testified that he had seen Mr. Dunbar under the influence of liquor.

Mrs. Dunbar was recalled for brief testimony, stating that on one Sunday her husband came home staggering drunk and slept four hours. Mr. Shannon called and talked with Mr. Dunbar and she understood that the fires had been out. She said that her husband was not his real self, but that he was always been true to him, telling him she was not getting well and not to send the expressman for the goods. He was advised to live with his sister. There was a consultation between the counsel in the case and the clients, at which it was agreed to withdraw opposition and the papers concerning the settlement will be given the court later.

Court was then adjourned until this morning when the suit of Dolbear vs. Akers will be heard.

Miss Buckley's home at Peck's Corner.

Samuel Lawley of Providence and Robert Downing of Hartford, who were guests of Thomas B. Buckley of Peck's Corner over Memorial day, have returned home.

Mrs. Chaucey A. Fuller of Vergason avenue visited friends at West- erty on Sunday and Monday. While there she visited the graves of her father, mother and sister at Union cemetery.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Keables of New York and Mrs. Roscoe P. Frazier and son, Roscoe P. Frazier, returned home Tuesday after a few days' visit with Mrs. Arthur Keables of the New London turnpike.

On Sunday George LePan of the Canterbury turnpike had thirty-three callers from different cities at the Belle View farm. Among them were Mr. and Mrs. Ringer of Boston, the former one of the superintendents of a big life insurance company, and Mr. Levoite of Providence.

Damage Done by Cut Worms.

Local residents who have gardens are complaining of the disastrous work of the cut worm, which seems especially fond of cucumber and musk melon plants. One recent day up fifteen from one melon hill. The best way to exterminate the pests is said to be dig them up with a small stick and kill them. They will not eat poison. It is also said if unslaked lime is buried around the plants they will not burrow through it. If by paper or birch bark is tied around the stems the worms will not eat through it.

Miss Abbie Ackley of Vergason avenue is at her home for the summer from the Adventists' academy at South Manchester, Mass.

GIVEN A SURPRISE.

Neighbors of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Henseler Have a May Basket.

On Friday evening about twenty-five of the neighbors surprised Mr. and Mrs. Henry Henseler and Mrs. Furey at their home on Plain Hill, the occasion being the hanging of a May basket, which was filled with fruit, candy and peanuts. Mr. Henseler had a lively time chasing the Plain Hill sprinter, Harry Stott. After a half-hour's hard work he got them all together and invited them into the house. The ladies all brought cake and the men brought a bunch of peanuts. Music, games and dancing were enjoyed, for which Professor Hazard played the violin in the good old fashioned way. Refreshments were served and the party broke up in the early morning, wishing Mr. and Mrs. Henseler many more pleasant evenings.
